DETAILED ACTION

Pertinent Art Cited

The following US Patent Applications reveal the current state of the art:

Meier (US 4,480,771) teaches a method for operating a sliding closure for a metallurgical vessel (Fig. 3; Abstract, lines 1-9), the sliding closure including two tensionable closure plates (12 and 24) opposing one another (Fig. 4), with each of the two closure plates being slidably positioned (24) within a corresponding housing part (Fig. 4) and with spring elements (40) being provided for tensioning the closure plates (Column 8, lines 5-10)

However, Meier does not teach at least wherein one of the closure plates, along with its corresponding housing part, is slidable and can be moved into a closed or open position by a drive member, said method comprising:

performing an offline and/or an online diagnosis of an operating condition within an area of the closure plates, by measuring at least one of size, temperature, pressure and force associated with the sliding closure so as to obtain at least one measured value, and evaluating the at least one measured value either directly or together with additional relevant process parameters; and based upon the diagnosis, one of

- (i) continuing use of the sliding closure, and
- (ii) discontinuing use of the sliding closure.

Mathiesen et al. (US 5,939,016) teach a method for operating a sliding closure for a metallurgical vessel (Fig. 3), the sliding closure including two closure plates (92 and 94) opposing one another (Fig. 3), with each of the two closure plates being slidably positioned (94) within a corresponding housing part (Fig. 3) and with spring elements (89 and 87) being provided for tensioning the closure plates (Column 9, lines 58-60).

Art Unit: 2863

However, Mathiesen does not teach at least wherein one of the closure plates, along with its corresponding housing part, is slidable and can be moved into a closed or open position by a drive member, said method comprising:

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 11-24 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The primary reason for the allowance of claims 11 and 20 is the inclusion of the limitation "performing an offline and/or an online diagnosis of an operating condition within an area of the closure plates, by measuring at least one of size, temperature, pressure and force associated with the sliding closure so as to obtain at least one measured value, and evaluating the at least one measured value either directly or together with additional relevant process parameters". The prior art of record, taken alone or in combination, fails to disclose or render obvious.

Claims 12-19 and 21-24 are allowed due to their dependency on claims 11 and 20.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
